2013-2014 Edit Types

An edit is a problem or eligibility issue that is generated based on the information provided on the student’s FAFSA. Some edits are uncorrectable (e.g. a late FAFSA). Some edits simply inform students that they are not eligible for state financial aid based on the information provided on the FAFSA (e.g. used four years of aid, not an Indiana resident, attending an ineligible Indiana institution). Failure to correct other edits (e.g. no signature or wrong social security number) by the May 15, 2013 deadline will result in the loss of eligibility for most state financial aid.

2012-2013 Professional Judgments

A Professional Judgment refers to the authority of the school's financial aid administrator to make adjustments to the data elements on the FAFSA and to override a student's dependency status. The school does not have the authority to change the need analysis formula itself or to make direct adjustments to the EFC. Instead, the school may make adjustments to the inputs to the formula as dictated by the impact of special circumstances on the family's income and assets. While a school may make a professional judgment for a number of reasons, the State of Indiana only accepts professional judgments based on specific reasons for purposes of calculating a student's state financial aid award.
